reply that I'm afraid I blundered sadly about. I could not tell Mrs. Hall so it seemed like a breach of confidence - talking of family affairs to every people.

I purposely spoke of Willis' great friendship for Mr. Hall, and after discussing that the man said: "Henry Sterens wasn't very friendly to Mr. Hall was he?" I replied "no, I don't think he was." "He wasn't at his sister's wedding?" "No." "Did you ever ~~hear~~ Mrs. Hall ever tell you why this <sup>the indignation</sup> was so?" "No. She didn't know.

It was always a grief to her.
That was the exact conversation as I re-
